Fiscal Year Summary Report
of Population Movement

An overall view of the volume and movement of offenders under the supervision of Wisconsin's Division of Corrections during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1984, is presented in this publication. Data on average daily populations and movements into and out of correctional facilities for adult offenders can be found in Table 1. Wisconsin offenders resident under contract in the Milwaukee House of Corrections, other Wisconsin county jails, federal correctional facilities, and institutions operated by the State of Minnesota are included in Table 1. Also included are offenders resident in the Wisconsin Resource Center which is operated by the Division of Care and Treatment Facilities. Information about movements into and out of Wisconsin's juvenile institutions, Ethan Allen and Lincoln Hills School can be found in Table 2 while Table 2-A provides fiscal year data relating to youth aids. Probation and parole services data and information about absconders can be found in Tables 3 and 4 respectively, while Table A provides average daily population figures for fiscal years 1980 through 1984.

A total of 31,787 persons were under Division of Corrections supervision on June 30, 1984; an increase of 6.7 percent over July 1, 1983, when 29,794 persons were reported as being under supervison. The resident population in facilities for adults increased slightly (1.6 percent) from 4,706 at the beginning of the fiscal year to 4,779 on June 30, 1984. Juvenile institutions reported a resident population of 471 youths on June 30, 1984; a decrease of 3.7 percent from the 489 residents at the start of the year. It should be noted that these figures do not include institutionalized adults and juveniles reported as absent in footnotes for Tables 1 and 2. The probation and parole services caseload increased from 22,267 to 23,908 (7.4 percent) during the fiscal year while the number of persons on the absconder caseload increased from 2,332 to 2,629 (12.7 percent) during the same time period.

Table A presents information about the average daily populations for all cases supervised by the Division of Corrections in either institutional settings or in the community under probation or parole supervision for the fiscal years 1980-1984. Average daily populations were determined by computing average daily populations for each month of the fiscal year, totaling the results, and dividing by 12 to obtain an average daily population for the fiscal year. Average daily populations were not computed for persons on the absconder caseloads.

The average daily population for all types of cases supervised by the Division of Corrections reached a five-year high of 27,802 cases in fiscal year 1984; an increase of 17.6 percent over the five-year low of 23,651 recorded in 1980. The largest increase during the five-year period, 6.1 percent, occurred between fiscal years 1981 and 1982. Overall institution daily population figures increased steadily during the five-year period. The 1.4 percent increase, from 5,124 in 1983 to 5,194 in 1984 was the smallest increase recorded. The highest increase during the five-year period was 9.3 percent from an average daily population of 4,688 in 1982 to 5,124 in 1983. The bulk of the increases during the five-year period occurred in adult facilities where the average daily population reached a five-year high of 4,749 in fiscal year 1984, an increase of 2.5 percent over the 4,634 reported for 1983. The increase in adult institution average daily populations recorded in fiscal 1984 was the lowest increase during the five years with the highest (10.6 percent) reported between 1981 and 1982. Juvenile institution average daily populations, which stood at a record high of 576 during 1980, decreased 21.2 percent to 454 in 1982, rose 7.9 percent to 490 in 1983 and dropped to a five-year low of 445 in fiscal year 1984.

Average daily populations of offenders on some type of supervision in the community; i.e., probation, parole, increased steadily during the five-year period from a low of 19,585 in 1980 to a high of 22,608 in 1984, an increase of 15.4 percent. The decline in the average daily populations of persons under youthful offender probation and parole or juvenile probation supervision during the five-year period is attributable to the repeal of the Youthful Offender Statute (July 1, 1978) and the revision of Wisconsin's Childrens Code (November 1978) along with a Department of Health and Social Services policy decision not to accept supervision of juveniles placed on probation. Average daily populations of persons on probation rose to 19,201 in 1984; and increase of 5.3 percent over the 18,241 recorded in 1983; the average daily population of persons on some type of parole supervision reached a five-year high of 3,407; on increase of 7.5 percent over the 3,171 average recorded during fiscal year 1983.

Wisconsin Adult Correctional Institutions
Calendar Year 1983

A total of 2,466 persons, 1,963 first and 503 readmissins, entered Wisconsin's Division of Corrections institutions for adult offenders during calendar year 1983; an increase of 3.8 percent over 1982 levels when 1,940 first and 437 readmissions were reported. An additional 435 persons admitted during 1983 are noted only in Table 1, admission status. These include 317 men and 30 women admitted pending the outcome of probation, parole, mandatory release, or special action early release revocation hearings, 81 men and 2 women institutionalized on alternative to revocation contracts, 3 men reported as voluntary returns from mandatory release, and 2 men who were admitted in error. A variety of information about persons first and readmitted during 1983 (offense, length of sentence, etc.) can be found in Tables 2 through 18. Note: There are two types of first admissions; (1) those persons who are not under any type of supervision at the time of sentencing and who therefore receive a new adult sentence and (2) those who have had their probation supervision revoked and are institutionalized as probation violators either with or without additional sentences. Persons found to have violated the conditions of parole or mandatory release supervision and who are then re-institutionalized either with or without additional sentences are considered to be readmissions. Information about region and county of commitment for men and women received during 1983 is presented in Figures 1 and 2.

Male First Admissions

A total of 1,837 men entered Wisconsin's correctional institutions for adult offenders as first admissions during 1983, a slight increase (1.7 percent) over the 1,806 admissions reported during 1982. The majority (68.7 percent) were men who received new sentences but were not probation violators while just under one-fifth (19.4 percent) were admitted as probation violators who had not received an additional sentence. The remaining 11.9 percent were classed as probation violators who had also received a new sentence. (See Table 1.) Burglary (32.3 percent), armed robbery (6.7 percent), and theft (6.7 percent) were the offenses for which men first-admitted in 1983 were most commonly sentenced. (See Table 2.) Men convicted of burglary entered the institution with an average (mean) sentence of 43.1 months while those convicted of armed robbery and theft received average (mean) sentences of 104.0 and 33.7 months respectively. The average (median) length of sentence for all men reported as first admissions was 36.0 months; the mean, 57.3 months. These computations exclude those first admissions who had received life sentences. (See Tables 3 and 5.) Men not considered to be assaultive, sex, or drug offenders made up almost three-fifths (57.3 percent) of 1983's first admissions. One-tenth were classified as being both assaultive and sex offenders and almost one-fourth (24.3 percent) were typed as being solely assaultive offenders. (See Table 6.) The current felony conviction was the only one on record for slightly over one-half (54.2 percent) of the men first-admitted during 1983. One-fifth (21.1 percent) had one prior felony conviction while only 3.2 percent had a record of five or more prior felony convictions. Three out of 10 (30.0 percent) had previously spent time in penal institutions, the majority of these in the Wisconsin system. Thirty percent of the men were also reported to have had prior stays in juvenile institutions. (See Tables 10, 11, and 12.)

*N = 142 commitments, 126 first admissions and 16 readmissions.

Seven out of 10 men (69.8 percent) first-admitted in 1983 were committed from the 19 counties making up the lower third of Wisconsin; i.e., the Milwaukee, Southeastern, and Southern regions. Five counties, Milwaukee, Kenosha, Racine, Dane, and Rock, all of which are located in this section of the state, accounted for almost three-fifths (58.7 percent) of first admissions in 1983. (See Table 4 and Figure 1.) Over seven-tenths (73.3 percent) of the men were less than thirty years of age at the time of admission, with the average (median) age for first admissions as a group being 23.0 years. (See Table 7.) Slightly more than three-fifths (63.5 percent) of the men were white, one-third were Black, and 3.1 percent were reported as being Native Americans. Men with Hispanic ethnic and cultural backgrounds made up 6.2 percent of 1983's first admissions. (See Table 8.) Just over two-thirds (67.5 percent) were reported as never having been married while less than one-fifth (15.3 percent) were married at the time of admission. (See Table 9.) A record of service in the military was noted for slightly less than one-fourth (22.1) percent of the men. (See Table 17.)

Male Readmissions

A total of 487 men classified as readmissions; i.e., violators returned from parole, mandatory release, or special action early release supervision, were reported in calendar year 1983. This is a 13.3 percent increase over the 430 readmissions reported during 1982. Approximately two-thirds (64.3 percent) were classified as violators returned without new sentences while the remaining third (35.7 percent) were violators who had received new sentences. (See Table 1.)

The most common offenses noted for men readmitted in 1982 were unarmed burglary (32.5 percent), armed robbery (11.9 percent), and undifferentiated robbery (8.7 percent). (See Table 2.) Men readmitted received average (mean) sentences of 79.3 months while the median sentence was 60.0 months. Those men sentenced for unarmed burglary, armed robbery, and undifferentiated robbery entered the institution with average (mean) sentences of 63.4, 129.7, and 100.0 months respectively. (See Tables 3 and 5.) Just over one-half (51.8 percent) of the readmissions were not considered to be assaultive, sex, or drug offenders with just under one-third (31.4 percent) as being solely assaultive offenders and about one-tenth (9.5 percent) typed as both assaultive and sex offenders. (See Table 6.) About two-thirds (65.3 percent) had prior felony records with at least one-fourth having a record of at least three prior felony convictions. Previous experience in penal institutions was reported for the majority (96.9 percent) of the men with the greatest share of prior institutionalization having been in the Wisconsin system. Two-fifths (40.4 percent) were found to have had prior stay in a juvenile institution. (See Tables 10, 11, and 12.)

Three-fourths of the men readmitted in 1983 came from the three regions which make up the Southern third of Wisconsin. Milwaukee County accounted for 45.2 percent of the readmissions. (See Table 4 and Figure 1.) Almost two-thirds (65.8 percent) of the men were under the age of thirty at the time of readmission. The average (median) age was 26.0 years; the mean, 28.4 years. (See Table 7.) Slightly over one-half (53.4 percent) were from white racial backgrounds while roughly two-fifths (42.9 percent) were Black. Only 2.9 percent of the men were from Hispanic ethnic and cultural backgrounds. (See Table 8.) The bulk (85.7 percent) of the men were single at admission with only 12.9 percent reported as being married. (See Table 9.) One-fifth (20.1 percent) were reported to have a record of military service. (See Table 17.)

First and Readmitted Females

The number of women entering the institutions remained stable; 142 admissions in 1983, 141 in 1982. However, the proportion of first-admitted women, which stood at 95.0 percent in 1982, dropped to 88.7 percent in 1983 while readmissions more than doubled from 7 (5.0 percent) in 1982 to 16 (11.3 percent) in 1983. Three out of 10 (30.8 percent) of the women first-admitted in 1983 had been convicted of forgery or theft while one-half of those reported as readmissions had received sentences for forgery. (See Table 2.) Women reported as first admissions entered the institution with average (mean) sentences of 43.0 months while 55.1 months was reported as being the average (mean) sentence for readmissions. The median sentences reported for women first and readmitted during 1983 were 36.0 and 44.0 months respectively. Those first admitted because of forgery and theft entered with average (mean) sentences of 33.7 and 28.1 months while women readmitted on forgery charges were sentenced to serve an average (mean) of 41.0 months. (See Tables 3 and 5.) Almost three-fifths (58.7 percent) of the women first-admitted and 11 out of 16 of those readmitted during 1983 were not considered to be assaultive, sex, or drug offenders. Slightly less than one-third (30.2 percent) of the first and 3 out of 16 of the readmitted women were categorized as being solely assaultive offenders. (See Table 6.) Previous felony convictions were noted for just over two-fifths (43.6 percent) of the first-admitted women and 3 out of 10 were reported to have had previous stays in penal institutions. A record of juvenile institution experience was reported for less than one-fifth of both the first and readmitted women. (See Tables 10, 11, and 12.)

Women, whether first or readmissions, tended to be committed to the institution from counties in the Southern third of Wisconsin. The three regions, Southern, Southeastern, and Milwaukee, which make up this section of the state committed 7 out of 10 (69.6 percent) of the first admissions and 8 out of 10 (81.3 percent) of the readmissions during 1983. Milwaukee County accounted for one-third (33.2 percent) of the first admissions and one-half of the readmissions. (See Table 4 and Figure 2.) Almost two-thirds (63.5 percent) of the first-admitted women were less than thirty years of age at the time of admission with 7 of the women being less than twenty years old. The average (median) age reported was 25.0 years for first admissions; 29.0 years for readmission. All women admitted were under 55 years of age. (See Table 7.) Over one-half (55.5 percent) of the first-admitted women were reported to be white as were somewhat over one-third (37.5 percent) of the readmissions. Ten women, all first admissions, were from Hispanic ethnic and cultural backgrounds. About two-thrids (62.5 percent) of the readmissions and over one-third (37.3 percent) of the first admissions were reported to be Black. (See Table 8.) Almost four-fifths (78.6 percent) of the first-admitted women and over two-thirds (68.8 percent) of the readmissions were single at the time of entry into the institution. Just under one-half (49.2 percent) of the first admissions and almost one-third (31.3 percent) of the readmissions had never been married. (See TAble 9.) Three women, were reported to have served in the military. (See Table 17.)

Offenders Released From
Division of Corrections Adult Institutions
Calendar Year 1983

This publication is designed not only to describe the persons released from Wisconsin's correctional facilities for adult offenders during calendar year 1983 but also to provide some information about their participation in institution programs and activities during incarceration. Table 1 indicates that a total of 2,352 persons, 2,224 men and 128 women, considered to be first or rereleases left institutions during 1983. First releases are those people who are released from institution supervision for the first time following an admission with a new sentence not associated with a parole, mandatory release, or special action early release violation and revocation. Rereleases are persons released from institution supervision following a return to the institution as a parole, mandatory release violator, or special action early release violator with or without a new sentence. An additional 154 persons noted in Table 1 have been excluded from the text as well as from Tables 2 through 22. The excluded group is made up of 62 men and 3 women released after completion of probation, parole, mandatory release, or special action early release revocation hearings, 85 men and 2 women released after completion of alternative to revocation contracts, and 2 men released following admission in error. Five-year trend tables for first and rereleased males for the period 1979-1983 can be found in Appendix Tables A and B, while trend data for first released females appears in Appendix C. Such a table was not prepared for re-released females because smallness of numbers tends to make comparisons meaningless

First Released Males

A total of 1,758 men classified as first releases left Wisconsin's correctional facilities during calendar year 1983; an increase of eleven percent over the 1,571 reported in the previous yeear. The majority (96.4 percent) were released to serve the balance of their sentences under supervision in the community while the remainder, with the exception of 7 who died while institutionalized, were discharged because of expiration of sentence or by court order.

Unarmed burglary (34.5 percent), armed robbery (10.1 percent), and theft (6.7 percent) were the crimes for which men first-released in 1983 had most often been imprisoned. (See Table 2.) First releases as a group spent an average (mean) of 24.1 months in the institution; a median of 19.0 months. (See Table 3.) Men released after imprisonment for unarmed robbery, armed robbery, and theft had spent an average (mean) of 20.5 months, 39.1 months, and 15.9 months respectively in the institutions prior to first release. (See Table 20). Somewhat over one-half (54.6 percent) of the men were not considered to be assaultive, sex, or drug offenders while just under two-fifths (38.0 percent) were classified as being assaultive. (See Table 8.)

Participation in classes designed to up-grade basic educational skills was reported for about one-fifth (18.7 percent) of the men first-released in 1983 while one-third (33.9 percent) took part in classes to prepare for GED and HED examinations. Three hundred and seventy-five men obtained GED or HED certificates in this manner. Thirty-four men earned high school diplomas prior to being released. (See Tables 11, 12, and 13.) *N = 2,221 men. Three men have been excluded because of lack of information residents in dealing with problems relating to the use of alcohol and/or other drugs were participated in by two-fifths (40.5 percent) of the men prior to release. (See Table 14.) One-third (33.8 percent) of the men first-released in 1983 participated in vocational and apprenticeship programs while incarcerated and 305 men (17.3 percent) held jobs under the work release program. (See Tables 15 and 17.)

Nine out of 10 men (91.2 percent) first-released in 1983 intended to live in Wisconsin, while almost one-tenth (8.5 percent) were going to reside in other parts of the United States. The greater share (62.1 percent) of those who planned to live in Wisconsin intended to take up residence in the 19 county area making up the Southern one-third of the state with roughly one-third (34.2 percent) going to live in Milwaukee County. (See Figure 1 and Table 22.)

Rereleased Males

An increase of 21.3 percent in the number of men reported as rereleases was noted in 1983 when 466 as contrasted with the 384 reported in 1982 left the institutions. Three-fifths (62.4 percent) left the institutions on mandatory release, just under one-fourth (22.5 percent) received paroles or were special action early releases, and the remainder were discharged either because of expiration of sentence or by order of the court.

Slightly over one-third (34.1 percent) of the men rereleased in 1983 had been institutionalized following conviction on unarmed burglary charges and somewhat less than one-fifth (17.6 percent) had been sentenced for the commission of armed robbery. (See Table 2.) The average (mean) length of sentence reported was 87.6 months; the median, 66.0 months. (See Table 3.) Just under one-half (47.2 percent) of the men rereleased during 1983 were considered to be assaultive offenders or assaultive offenders also regarded as sex and/or drug offenders. Roughly the same proportion (48.1 percent) were classified as non-assaultive, sex, or drug offenders. (See Table 8.) These men were found to have spent an average (mean) of 17.7 months in the institution just prior to being rereleased. (See Table 5.)

Only 8.8 percent of the men spent any time in adult basic education classes while in the institution and just under one-fifth (18.5 percent) took classes leading toward the acquistion of GED or HED certificates. A total of 51 such certificates were granted and three men earned their high school diplomas prior to being rereleased. (See Tables 11, 12, and 13.)

Almost three-fourths (73.0 percent) of the men rereleased during 1983 returned to living situations in the Southern and Southeastern sections of Wisconsin. Milwaukee County was reported to be the intended residence for over two-fifths (43.3 percent) of the men. Only 18 (3.8 percent) planned to live in other sections of the United States. (See Figure 1 and Table 22.)

First and Rereleased Females

A total of 117 women received first releases during 1983; an increase of 10.4 percent over the 106 reported during 1982. Rereleases more than doubled from five in 1982 to 11 in 1983. Nine out of 10 (94.0 percent) of the first-released women were either released on parole, special action early release, or mandatory release status while the remaining seven were either discharged because of expiration of sentence (two cases) or by order of the court (five cases).

* N = 127 women. One woman has been excluded because of lack of information.

First and rereleased women had been most often sentenced to prison for forgery (26.4 percent, 45.4 percent) and theft (18.7 percent, 18.2 percent). Women first-released during 1983 spent an average (mean) of 17.0 months in the institution while those rereleased were institutionalized for an average (mean) of 6.9 months during this stay. (See Table 5.) Almost three-fifths (57.3 percent) of the first and eight out of 11 (72.7 percent) of the rereleased women were not considered to be assaultive, sex, or drug offenders. (See Table 8.)

Participation in programs designed to assist people in dealing with problems related to the use of alcohol and/or other drugs was noted for slightly more than one-half (53.0 percent) of the first-released women and for only two of the women rereleased during 1983. (See Table 14.) Slightly over one-third (35.9 percent) of the first releases and three of the rereleases took part in adult basic education classes while in the institution. One-half (49.5 percent) of the first released women were reported to have been enrolled in classes leading to the acquistion of a GED or HED certificate as were four of the rereleased women. Twenty-eight certificates were earned by women released during 1983, 26 by those first-released. (See Table 12.) Four women, all first releases, took part in high school programs while incarcerated and three were awarded diplomas. (See Table 13.)

Almost three-fourths (73.0 percent) of the women first released during 1983 were going to return to live in the three regions that comprise southern Wisconsin; i.e., the southern, southeastern, and Milwaukee regions. This was true for all but one of the women rereleased during the same time period. Nine of the first-released women intended to live in states other than Wisconsin. (See Table 22 and Figure 2.)

1983 Calendar Year Summary of Population Movement

This summary bulletin is designed to provide an overall view of the volume and movement of offenders under the supervision of Wisconsin's Division of Corrections during calendar year 1983. Movements into and out of adult correctional facilities as well as average daily population information can be found in Table 1. This table includes data on Wisconsin offenders resident under contract in the Milwaukee House of Corrections, other Wisconsin county jails, federal correctional facilities, and institutions operated by the state of Minnesota as well as offenders resident in the Wisconsin Resource Center operated by the Division of Care and Treatment Facilities. Movements into and out of Ethan Allen and Lincoln Hills Schools, Wisconsin's two juvenile facilities, can be found in Table 2 while Table 2-A provides calendar year data relating to youth aids. Calendar year 1983 probation and parole services movement data and information about movements of offenders on absconder status can be found in Tables 3 and 4 respectively. Average daily population figures for the period 1979-1983 can be found in Insert A.

A total of 30,419 persons were under Division of Corrections supervision on December 31, 1983; an increase of 6.5 percent over January 1, 1983, levels when 28,562 persons were reported under supervision. Adult facilities reported a resident population of 4,700 persons on December 31, 1983; an increase of only 1.4 percent over the 4,635 residents at the start of the year. Juvenile institution population decreased 11.9 percent from 515 on January 1, 1983, to 454 at year's end. It should be noted that these figures do not include institutionalized adults and juveniles reported as absent in footnotes for Tables 1 and 2. Increases from 21,193 to 22,743 (7.3 percent) in probation and parole services caseloads and from 2,219 to 2,522 (13.7 percent) in probation and parole absconder caseloads were also noted during calendar year 1983.

Information about the average daily population for all cases supervised by the Division of Corrections in either institutional settings or in the local community under probation or parole supervision for the calendar years 1979-1983 can be found in Table A. Absconders from probation or parole supervision during the five-year period are not included. Average daily populations were determined by computing average daily population for each month of the calendar year, totaling the results, and dividing by 12 to obtain average daily population figures for the calendar year.

The average daily population for all types of cases supervised by the Division of Corrections has increased steadily from a low of 23,313 in 1979 to a high of 27,149 in calendar year 1983; an increase of 16.5 percent. The largest increase during the five-year period (8.4 percent) was noted between calendar years 1981 and 1982.

The overall institution average daily population increased 5.7 percent from 4,902 in 1982 to 5,182 in 1983. The bulk of the increase occurred in adult facilities where average daily populations rose to a five-year high of 4,716; a 6.1 percent increase over the 4,446 reported for 1982.

This was also the lowest increase for the five-year period replacing the previous low of 6.2 percent recorded between 1979 and 1980. The highest increase recorded was 10.7 percent between 1980 and 1981 followed by a 10.4 percent increase recorded between 1981 and 1982. Juvenile institution average daily populations, which began to decrease in 1979, reported an increase for the first time during the five-year period from 456 in 1982 to 466 in 1983; an increase of 2.2 percent.

The average daily populations for persons under some type of Division of Corrections community supervision; i.e., probation or parole supervision, increased steadily during the five-year period from 19,301 in 1979 to 21,967 in 1983, an increase of 13.8 percent. The average daily populations of youthful offenders and juvenile offenders under both probation and parole supervision declined during the five-year period. The decrease in the averge daily population of persons on youthful offender probation or parole supervision can be attributed to the fact that the Youthful Offender Statute, which became effective on July 1, 1976, was repealed effective on July 1, 1978. The decrease in juvenile populations can be traced to (1) the revision of Wisconsin's Children's Code (revised November 1978) and (2) a Department of Health and Social Services policy decision not to accept supervision of juveniles placed on probation under the revised code. Probation supervision average daily populations rose from 15,932 in 1979 to 18,680 in 1983; an increase of 17.3 percent. Parole and aftercare average daily populations decreased from 3,369 in 1979 to a five-year low of 2,929 in 1981. These populations began to increase between 1981 and 1982 (7.6 percent); with another increase of 4.4 percent recorded between 1982 and 1983.

Residents in Wisconsin Adult Correctional Facilities on June 30, 1984

With Five-Year Trends for 1980-1984

Wisconsin's Division of Corrections was responsible for a resident population of 4,779 adult offenders, 4.576 males and 203 females, on June 30, 1984; a slight increase (1.6 percent) over the 4,706 residents reported on June 30, 1983. The greater proportion (92 percent) were resident in facilities operated by the Division of Corrections, two percent were confined at the Wisconsin Resource Center operated by the Division of Care and Treatment Facilities, while the remaining residents (6 percent) were housed under contractual agreements with the Milwaukee County House of Corrections, other county jails in Wisconsin, federal correctional facilities, and correctional institutions operated by the state of Minnesota. (See state map preceding this text for geographic location and security level of facilities operated by the Division of Corrections.)

Table 1 presents information about the admission status (new adult sentence, return from adult parole, etc.) of those persons in residence on June 30, 1984. Thirty-five males and one female were being held pending the completion of probation, parole, mandatory release, and special action early release revocation hearings while an additional 29 persons including one female were institutionalized on alternative to revocation contracts. These 63 males and two females have been excluded from the descriptive information such as race and ethnicity, length of sentence, current age, etc. which is presented in Tables 2 through 15. The maps, A and B, depict the resident population by region and county of commitment. For those interested in trends, selected data for the years 1980 through 1984 is included in Tables A and B.

* N = 4,508 males. Five men for whom information was unavailable were excluded.

The number of males in residence increased slightly (1.7 percent) from 4,499 on June 30, 1983, to 4,576 on June 30, 1984. Although the resident population has increased steadily during the five-year period, the percentage of the increase has been decreasing since the 11.4 percent rise noted between June 30, 1981, and June 30, 1982. Just over four-fifths (82.4 percent) of the males in residence on June 30, 1984, as was true during each of the four previous years, were classified as new admissions. This group includes males who received new sentences from the court, probation violators admitted with or without a new sentence, and juvenile aftercare and youthful offender parole violators who entered the institution with new adult sentences. An average (median) age of 27.0 years was recorded for males in residence on June 30, 1984; a high for the five-year period. The proportion of males from non-White backgrounds continued to decrease reaching a five-year low of 40.5 percent on June 30, 1984. Map A, which depicts commitments by county and region of the state, shows that males committed from only 19 out of 72 (26.4 percent) of the state's counties; i.e., the Southern, Southeastern, and Milwaukee Regions, accounted for slightly less than three-fourths (72.8 percent) of all commitments in residence on June 30, 1984.

Residents who were not regarded as assaultive, sex, or drug offenders made somewhat less than two-fifths (38.8 percent) of the population on June 30, 1984; a slight increase over the 38.5 percent recorded on June 30, 1983. The proportion of males incarcerated exclusively for drug offenses rose to a five-year high of 4.8 percent on June 30, 1984, while males sentenced solely for sex offenses continued to make up less than one percent of the resident population. Males convicted exclusively of assaultive crimes accounted for just under two-fifths (39.8 percent) of those in residence on June 30, 1984; an increase over the five-year low of one-third (33.9 percent) recorded on the same date in 1983. The proportion of residents convicted of both assaultive and sex offenses decreased from the five-year high of one-fifth (19.9 percent) in 1983 to 15.0 percent on June 30, 1984.

* N = 198. Three females for whom information was not available were excluded.

On June 30, 1984, a total of 203 females were in residence; a slight decrease (1.9 percent) from the five-year high reported on June 30, 1983, and the first decreased reported during the five-year period. Females from non-White backgrounds made up just over two-fifths (43.8 percent) of the population in residence on June 30, 1984; a low for the five-year period. The average (median) length of sentence was 4.7 years, an increase of almost a full year over the average (median) reported for those in residence on June 30, 1983. Map B indicates that females committed from 41 of Wisconsin's 72 counties were in residence in correctional facilities for adult offenders on June 30, 1984. Seven out of ten females in residence on that date were committed from counties in the southern third of the state; i.e., the Milwaukee, Southern, and Southeastern Regions. Milwaukee County, which committed over one-half (55.7 percent) of the females in residence on June 30, 1980, committed one-third of those resident on June 30, 1984; a low for the five-year period.

Females sentenced for offenses not considered to be assaultive, drug or sex crimes made up somewhat less than one-half (46.8 percent) of the June 30, 1984 resident population; the lowest proportion during the five-year period. Interestingly, the proportion of females confined exclusively for assaultive crimes rose to a five-year high of over two-fifths (44.7 percent) on June 30, 1984.

1984 Calendar Year Summary
of Population Movement

Information about the volume and movement of persons supervised by Wisconsin's Division of Corrections during calendar year 1984 in facilities for adult or juvenile offenders and in the community on probation, parole, or aftercare status is summarized in this publication. Table 1 contains information about the types (new adult sentence, first release to adult parole, etc.) and volume of movements into and out of facilities for adult offenders. Those resident under contractual agreements in federal correctional facilities, the Milwaukee House of Corrections, other county jails in Wisconsin, and correctional institutions operated by the state of Minnesota are included in this table in the column labeled "contr. facilities." Men resident at the Wisconsin Resource Center (WRC), a facility operated by the Division of Care and Treatment Facilities, are also included in Table 1. Data about movements of juvenile offenders into and out of Ethan Allen and Lincoln Hills Schools appears in Table 2, while information relating to youth aids appears in Table 2-A. Probation and parole services movement and absconder data for calendar year 1984 can be found in Tables 3 and 4 respectively. Average daily populations for probation, parole, and institution cases for the period 1980-1984 can be found in Table A.

The Division of Corrections was responsibile for the supervision of 32,453 persons on December 31, 1984; an increase 6.7 percent over the beginning of the year when a total of 30,419 persons were reported as being under supervision. The number of persons incarcerated in facilities for adults increased 3.1 percent from 4,699 on January 1 to 4,845 on December 31, 1984. During the same time period, juvenile institution population rose from 454 to 518; an increase of 14.1 percent. These figures do not include institutionalized adults and juveniles reported as absent in footnotes for Tables 1 and 2. During calendar year 1984, probation and parole services caseload increased from 22,743 to 24,294 (6.8 percent) while the absconder caseload increased from 2,522 to 2,796 (10.9 percent).

Table A presents, for the calendar years 1980-1984, the average daily population for probation, parole, and institution cases for whom the Division of Corrections had supervisory responsibility. The calendar year average daily populations were arrived at by computing average daily populations for each month of the calendar year, totaling the results, and dividing by twelve. It should be noted that information about absconders from probation and parole supervision is not included in Table A.

The average daily population for all types of cases (probation, parole, institution) rose steadily from a five-year low of 23,960 in calendar year 1980 to a high of 28,555 in calendar year 1984; an increase of 19.2 percent. The increases between 1981-1982 (8.4 percent) and 1983-1984 (5.2 percent) were the two largest yearly increases during the five-year period. It is interesting to note that during each of the five years, eight out of ten persons for whom the Division of Corrections had responsibility were supervised in a community rather than institutional setting.

Field services (probation and parole) average daily population rose steadily from 19,794 in calendar year 1980 to 23,280 in 1984; an increase of 17.6 percent. The average daily population for persons on probation supervision increased 18.5 percent from 16,672 cases in 1980 to 19,755 in calendar year 1984. Parole supervision average daily populations increased from 3,122 in 1980 to 3,525 in 1984; an increase of 12.9 percent. Youthful and juvenile offender probation and parole supervision average daily populations decreased steadily during the five-year period. The decrease in youthful offender populations is due to the repeal of the Youthful Offender Statue, effective July 1, 1978. The November, 1978 revision of the Wisconsin Children's Code and a Department of Health and Social Services policy decision not to accept supervision of juveniles placed on probation under the revised code account for the steady decrease in juvenile probation and aftercare average daily populations.

Overall institution average daily populations increased 26.6 percent from 4,166 in calendar year 1980 to 5,275 in calendar year 1984. The average daily population recorded for facilities for adult offenders rose steadily from 3,639 in 1980 to 4,769 in 1984; an increase of 31.8 percent. Juvenile institution average daily populations decreased 13.5 percent from 527 cases in 1980 to a five-year low of 456 in 1982. These populations then began to rise with increases of 2.2 and 2.8 percent noted between 1982-1983 and 1983-1984 respectively.
